Notice to Palm Beach Post Subscribers Regarding Fraudulent Renewal Notices

This notice is to alert you that we have become aware of a nationwide scam that has affected subscribers to many publications, including some newspapers owned by Cox Media Group.

A company that is not affiliated with Cox Media Group and that is not authorized to solicit subscriptions or accept payments on their behalf has been mailing unauthorized notices to customers urging them to renew their subscriptions. The rates on the fraudulent notices are generally much higher than available rates.

The Palm Beach Post and Palm Beach Daily news have NOT been affected by this scam as of yet.

However, we want to protect you, our customer, by advising you the best way to identify these unauthorized notices, and ask that you DO NOT pay any unauthorized subscription renewal.

Here is more information to help you identify a fraudulent renewal notice:

- The company may operate under many different names. You could see names including Associated Publishers Network, Readers Payment Service, publisherpayment.com, unitedpubex.com.

- Notices may reference a Renewal Notice, Notice of Renewal, or New Order and include a request to make checks payable to a company other than The Palm Beach Post.

- The unauthorized renewal offer directs payments to a PO Box on Lemmon Drive in Reno, Nevada, a PO Box in White City, Oregon or 850 S Boulder Hwy in Henderson, Nevada.

Legitimate notices will direct subscription payments for The Palm Beach Post to PO Box 742626, Cincinnati, Ohio 45274-2626 or to 2751 South Dixie Hwy., West Palm Beach, FL 33405.

Please be aware that this is an industry-wide problem that has affected many publishers and is not isolated to Cox Media Group. Cox Media Group is working with state and federal authorities to stop this unauthorized activity.

Please be aware that we offer automatic renewal and that is the best way to avoid being deceived by a fraudulent renewal notice. To enroll in automatic renewal, please call customer service at 800-926-POST (7678).

If you receive a suspicious renewal notice that does not appear to be from The Palm Beach Post or Palm Beach Daily News do not respond. Feel free to direct any questions to subscriptionfraudalert@coxinc.com or call us at 800-926-POST (7678).

Thank you.
